water-colors shown at the meeting of the Union Club last evening form the last exhibition of on which has presented several features of un-interest. This exhibition, like others which painters who retain traces of English fidelity side by side with the grays of Holland, or for work are represented in pictures by Stan-auve, Maris, Leloir and Rico, but four-fifths, , of the water-colors which make up this landscape, an attempt at the solidity and oil, Mr. C. Y. Turner's excellent Dordrecht hrysanthemums by Miss Greatorex, land by Mr. Abbey, a study of "A Rustic hem are some essays in the treatment of nd Mr. Lafarge's study of an angol for the Church Ascension, a figure admirable in color and in rangement of the draperies. Mr. Homer exhibits A Shepherdess." Mr. Melchers brings the school to mind in two large figure studies, of which, "In the Kitchen," is a work of evident rit. Mr. Tiffany's feeling for color is illustrated his "Street Scene in Algiers," and there is exnis "street scene in Aiglers," and there is ou-ent figure work by Messrs. Dutman, Leon Moran, I Freer. Among the landscapes something should said of Mr. Shirlaw's sober, vigorous, largely do-ned "Study of a Passing Storm," which has for its osite a vivacious little sketch by Mr. Chase. opposite a vivacious little sketch by Mr. Chase. Mr. Whittemore's large autumn landscape is to be seen again, with good examples of "wet water-color" work by Mr. Rangor, a charming little landscape by Mr. Laiarge, paintings of cattle by Mr. J. D. Smillig, clever records of foreign travel by Mr. F. H. Smith, and other landscape work by Messrs. Dewey, Ochiman, Crane, Bollin, Jones, McCord and Arthur Parton. Mr. Alden Weir exhibits a study of dogs characterized by the artist's usual feeling for quiet harmony of color, and there are marines by Messrs. Rehn and H. P. Smith.

by the artist's usual feeling for quiet harmony of color, and there are marines by Messrs. Rehn and H. P. Smith.

But without lingering upon this interesting display of American versatility and eleverness in water-color work, we must pass on to note the foreign pictures, among which Barye's "Tiger" stands very nearly first. This is a finished example of the artist's work, carried out with unusual care, but without weakening the modelling. It is a picture admirable in expression and beautiful in color. Mauve's "Woodcutter," one of his slighter but more suggestive works, and the "Afternoon Hours" will appeal to those who have learned to appreciate the painter, and their number is now large. Maris's "Old Mill," a study of effect. Leloir's clever "Lute Player," Vibert's deftly touched "Caught in a Snowstorm," varying examples of Rico's sparkling effects, a seacoast scene by Stanfield, and a little study by Jacque, are among other examples of foreign use of a delightful medium, one appropriate to the season. This exhibition will be open to the friends of members to-day and to-merrow.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE MARKETS.

FEATURES OF NEW-YORK DEALINGS. The Government crop report on wheat was not as bullish as had been expected, although the showing is one not creditable to the outlook. The condition of winter wheat creditable to the outlook. The condition of winter wheat on May 1 is placed at 73 per cent, a reduction of 9 per cent from the April percentage. The April percentage was 82 against 92.5 per cent in April, 1887, and the May, 1887, percentage was 83, the May, 1886, 95 and the May, 1885, 70 per cent. The report also makes the condition of spring wheat ploughing backward. The activity in wheat eptions on Wednesday was continued, 15,000,000 bushels changing hands. But realizations helped to check any further advance of imperiance and turned the scale down. further advance of importance and turned the scale downward. After an early break of 3-325-8 cent a rally of 1-2-3-4 cent followed and then the market fell off 1-1+3-3 tents. The market closed at about bottom figures. port. Corn on the spot was firm with a better demand from shippers, 64,000 bushels being taken. The options early advanced 1-2-3-4 cent and closed firm with no material variations. Oats were dull and practically unchanged and the lard options were quiet and lower.

Illustration of the office of speculation than at neon when the Government crop report, reducing the condition of winter wheat to 73 reached this market. The figures were sensational, yet, when they came, a vast body of wheat bought by speculators was ready for sale. The violence of the news was broken. A single cencern, for instance, supposed to be acting for a single operator, had 2,000,000 bushels of wheat which it sold as quickly as it could on the excitement created by the arrival of the news. July wheat opened about where it closed on Wednesday, at port arrived, moving about between 85 7-8 cents and 86 5-8. July wheat rose to 87 1-4 cents when the figures were made public. Then followed the enormous selling by the men "fixed" for it. Poole, Sterman & Co. were the largest sellers. There was a gooddeal of wild buying at the top, that was unloaded later. July closed at night at 85 1-2 cents, nearly 2 cents under the top figures made on the publication of the report, and I cent under the opening figures. Small arrivals in corn helped to advance and hold the May option. It opened at 57 cents, sold between 56 3-4 and 57 1-8 and closed at 57. The other options were featureless, all the speculative interest centring for the day in wheat. July corn opened at 57 cents, sold between 56 3-4 and 57 1-8 and closed at 55. The other options were featureless, all the speculative interest centring for the day in wheat. July corn opened at 57-8 cents, sold between 56 3-4 and 50 1-8 and closed at 55. The other options were featureless, all the speculative interest centring for the day in wheat. July corn opened at 57-8 cents, sold between 56 3-4 and 50 1-8 and closed at 55. The other options were featureless, all the speculative interest centring for the day in wheat. July corn opened at 55 7-8 cents, sold between 56 3-4 and 50 1-8 and closed at 55. The other centring for the day in wheat. July corn opened at 55 7-8 cents, sold between 56 3-4 and 60 1-8 and closed at 55. The other centring for the day in wheat. July lard ope tring for the day in wheat. July corn open at 53 7-8 centa, soid between 55 3-4 and 56 1.5 and closed at 55 3-4 65 7-8. There were 24,500 hogs at the yarda and prices there were 5210 cents lower. This made hog product casy. July perk opened at 814 22 1-2, sold between 814 25 and 614 10 and closed at 814 17 1-12. July lard opened and closed at 83 22 1-2, being held by the shipments. July short ribs opened at 87 57 1-2, sold between 87 55 and 87 60 and closed at 87 60. Railroads.
